Hold onto your crotches, ladies. If you want to view some controversial, hot sex, check out Dress Up For Daddy, Dykestyles #2. If you're squeamish about incest, stay clear of this one, for as the Dress Up... video case says it's "Not for the Erotically Shy." Its focus? You guessed it — dyke daddy games. Yikes!

Dress Up is Fatale Video's second release in their new amateur video series. According to Shar, who was involved in the production of Fatale's amateur line, amateur videos used to be exclusively heterosexual terrain. "Originally, homegrown videos were big in the straight market," says Shar, who then explains that "homegrown" is a term used in the straight-porn world to define videos shot in people's homes. "Typically the way homegrown is distributed is by couples advertising in various adult magazines and exchanging their videos with other couples." Shar adds that these couples normally never meet, except through their videos. Shar says that "homegrown" is also distributed through video production companies, some of whom she describes as "total sleaze wads."

But, Dress Up... is definitely for and about dykes. For thirty minutes, two lesbians — one butch, the other fem — play out their Daddy/Girl fantasies in front of the camera. The video opens with each one, in separate spaces, getting dressed in their costumes. The butch puts on a brown shirt, black riding pants, combat boots and a Sam Brown belt. Meanwhile, our long-haired fem slips into a G-string, black heels and a bodice. She finishes off her look with a baby-doll bow that holds back her mane of hair.

As they dress, each woman shares with the audience why their play — mild S/M, costuming and Daddy games — is so erotically charged for them. "We were both interested in exploring our sexuality," says the fem who goes on to explain that she never had a very "satisfying" relationship with her father. She says she "needed a father figure," and tried to find this missing piece through her lovers. She found it with her butch who, in real life is her lover.

"When I call someone that I love and I know loves me back and will take care of me adds that when she's with someone "more masculine" than herself, she also has the opportunity to explore her femininity. She later states that her relationship with her partner works because "we have very separate identities," and each lives very separate lives.

For the butch, there's "a lot of room for me to have the dick in the relationship." The butch/fem aspect of the relationship is also a vehicle for the exploration of her "male identity." Normally the top of the pair, she also finds dressing like a man "incredibly hot." Our butch also admits that her relationship has also opened doors into "boy" games.

Slowly, the background dialogue fades and, presto! You've got your run-of-the-mill, paramilitary, fascist-looking butch ready to take on daddy's little girl.

Then, yes, ladies, they do it. Daddy's little girl, who needs Daddy's help finishing dressing, stands in front of Daddy who then whips out his/her dick and jerks off. Our little girl pleased to give Daddy a blow job. Needless to say, Daddy, after making his/her baby wait, finally acquiesces. And our fem proceeds to give Daddy a very well-orchestrated blow job. Then, both move onto the end and spend the next 2 minutes or so fucking each other with their fingers or a dildo; both have oral sex with each other. Then, Daddy puts out cuties pie over her/his knee and spansks her, and then they return to fucking and oral sex.

There is unprotected sex in Dress Up..., something that Fatale producers were well aware of. Although the fem uses gloves on the butch, they do have unprotected oral sex and the butch does not use gloves on her fem. When interviewed, Shar states that although Fatale, when producing their regular line of videos, always uses safe sex, the new line of amateur videos brought new challenges to their concept of safe sex. "Two real, live girlfriends who came to us with their fantasy," says Shar. "These two women, who were very young, very monogamous and were the only girlfriends either one had ever had, came to us with their fantasy," explains Shar emphasizing that Fatale provided the camera crew for Dress Up... "That's why they chose not to have safe sex, for they felt that, given their mutual histories and commitment to monogamy, they actually do practice safe sex," says Shar, emphasizing that this was the personal choice of the couple.

Shar explains that neither Fatale Video, which is a subdivision of Blush Entertainment, nor On Our Backs, a dyke sex magazine, which falls in Blush's domain are willing to censor their artists. "Blush Entertainment is a fantasy land, and we love it when people put safe sex into their work, and we encourage it, but we are not going to control our artists," says Shar who clarifies that Blush Entertainment "artists" are not just the Fatale actresses, but also On Our Back photographers and writers as well.

As far as their regular line of videos go, Blush is very much "in charge." However, Fatale works to "protect" their actresses who, according to Shar, are "very hip and with it" women when it comes to safe sex. So, when Blush produces their regular Fatale line, in which the actresses are usually not couples, the performers always use gloves and dental dams.

In fact, Blush's next video is specifically on safe sex. "Although we at Blush always use safe sex, we realized that it is really important that we talk about it, for women aren't getting it just by watching safe sex."

Despite the Dress Up's strengths, there are some erotic drawbacks that impede its turn-on-potency. Without the erotic frame of the Daddy games, as well as the butch's total absorption in her partner. Dress Up would be just your average video of two young dykes having hot sex. Also, the fem seems to want a lot more of the camera's attention than the script allows. She plays to the camera a little more than this reviewer prefers. I found myself wondering how long this cute couple, who plans on getting married, will last with one partner shows more interest in her audience than she does in her partner. After all, there are plenty of other butch tops, who would probably I'm sure be more than happy to feed the fem's desire for attention. But then, maybe this butch top reviewer is engaging in wishful projection.

But, if you're into daddy games, Dress Up For Daddy is definitely worth renting or buying. The game is extremely erotic, precisely because it brings up issues that are hot potatoes in a community full of healing incest survivors. Clearly, these two young women, who used the monies they received from the sale of Dress Up to fund a cross-country trip, get off on game playing. And, given the dyke erotic desert we're in, and the sexual intensity of the young butch, Dress Up is a video you should put on your must-see list because it also shows the tough-but-tender aspect to S/M relationships. Even though our young butch is not dicking around when she fucks her girl, she balances her intensity with several endearing acts, such as a warning to her partner not to bump her head on the edge of the bed. Also, there is a surprise part way through the video that's great.

Rest assured, Dress Up For Daddy will not only stir some dyke desires, but will also whip up some nice controversy. Anyway you look at it, I give Dress Up a thumb's up.
